Life in the Lincoln White House
White House History, Part 2 of Issues 24 and 25

This issue of White House History, the semi-annual journal of the White House Historical Association, is the second part of a special double set of the journal that commemorates Abraham Lincoln's administration during the bicentennial year of his birth.

"In planning our two Lincoln issues we were reminded constantly of the monumental place the Civil War or Lincoln years hold in the history of the White House," said William Seale, editor. "The nation's capital is filled with Lincoln places. The journal's foreword features Saint John's Church, "the Church of Presidents," where President Lincoln liked to slip in and out unnoticed for Evensong. He sat in pew 89, the last pew in the back corner beside the door."

White House History, Number 25, begins with Harold Holzer taking us inside "Abraham Lincoln's White House," while Anthony Pitch describes the chaos of the assassination and its aftermath. Michelle and Clifford Krainik have drawn together and analyzed for the first time photographs taken of visiting native Americans after their 1863 meeting with President Lincoln in the East Room. William Seale travels to the Confederate capital, Richmond, to find out how the president of the Confederacy lived in his official house. White House curator William G. Allman introduces us to the revised Lincoln Bedroom, redecorated with an eye to evoking Lincoln's White House.

White House History is published twice each year by the White House Historical Association and features articles on White House history, architecture, fine and decorative arts, and garden as well as stories about the occupants of the White House and their experiences living there.

White House History is available for $6.95 per copy (plus packing and delivery). To order please call toll free 1-800-555-2451 or visit our website www.whitehousehistory.org.
